

Lee County Utilities Update

Storm preparation

Lee County Utilities water and wastewater treatment plants are equipped with generators that are capable of operating the facility during and after a storm event.

During and after the storm Lee County Utilities may lower water pressure and lift stations may lose power. Because of the reduced pressures and the limited operations of lift stations, water conservation is a must.

Lee County Utilities also wants to remind residents that opening or tampering with manholes is subject to fines. Opening manholes is a safety hazard and may inundate the sewage collection system resulting in sewage backing up into homes.

For more utility tips, the Lee County 2017-2018 All Hazards Guide has more information and the Lee County Utilities website.