To Whom It May Concern:

RE: Letter of Bondability on: Various Bids

We understand that Amera-Tech, Inc. dba Florida Evergreen wishes to submit a bid, proposal, or prequalification on the above-referenced project that may require a bond. If they are successful bidder/proposer and are required to provide a performance and/or payment bond, we would not anticipate a problem in issuing the required bonds on their behalf for a single job up to $200,000 with an aggregate of $200,000.

Final issuance of the bonds would be based on our satisfactory completion of normal underwriting requirements, which include, but are not limited to, our satisfactory review and approval of the contract terms and conditions, our review of their financial condition at the time of award, their overall work program, verification of project financing and pertinent underwriting criteria.

This letter is not a commitment to provide a specific bond and is provided solely as an indication of our support. The execution of any bond is a matter between the contractor and us, as the surety. We assume no liability to you or any third party in providing this letter.

Sincerely,

Lisa White
Senior Contract Underwriter

Hi Bruce,

I read the note that you included concerning the performance bond. One of the submittals that I must have is a letter stating that you are eligible to obtain a bond. The term of the contract is only for one year and that is how long the bond should be good for. If we choose to renew the contract for another year then you will need to either renew the bond or obtain a new one. I need to have the letter by February 10, 2012.
